LUCINDA KASSER

Lucinda Kasser is a painter of still life and landscapes. Her love for art emerged at the early age of six, under the influence of her artist mother, visits to the Louvre, and first grade field trips to sketch scenes of Paris. She draws her inspiration from the sights, scents, and sounds of California where she lives and works.

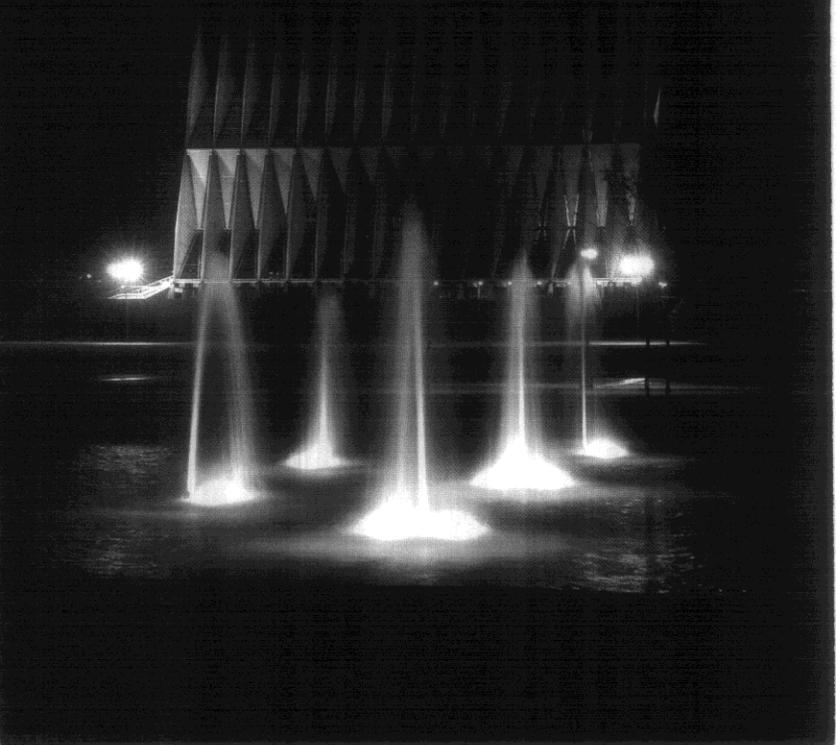

Currently a professor in the Department of Visual Arts at the University of the Pacific in Stockton, California, Kasser served as Chair of the department from 1995 to 2001. Kasser received her formal education at the University of Maryland, Humboldt State University and California State University, Sacramento. She has attended a number of workshops taught by Craig Nelson, Chair of the Fine Arts Department at the San Francisco Art Academy. She has also studied with contemporary masters, George Strickland, Randall C. Sexton, and Laurie Kersey.

Kasser's work is held in numerous public and private collections. In 2001, she was one of 24 artists invited by the Haggin Museum to participate in Contemporary Artists Paint Yosemite and the Eastern Sierra, an exhibition co-sponsored by the California Art Club. She was one of 48 artists participating in the Sea to Shining Sea: A Reflection of America project at the Haggin Museum in 2004 that has culminated in a book and a nationally traveling exhibition, in addition to other paintings exhibitions at the museum. In 2006, one of Lucinda's paintings was selected to be the featured image for the annual Sandhill Crane Festival in Lodi.

I have chosen in my life and in my work to attempt to see and acknowledge the world as a miraculous place. This is what inspires me to paint and this is what I hope viewers will consider as they view my work.

Any college can prepare you for an ordinary career. Those who attend the United States Air Force Academy will become prepared for an extraordinary life. Visit www.academyadmissions.com.

The roots of the United States Air Force can be traced back to the creation of the Aeronautical Division of the U.S. Army Signal Corps in 1907, the first American flying military organization. In 1918 the United States Army was reorganized with the addition of 17,500 personnel of the Air Service. The Air Service was renamed Army Air Corps in July 1926. In June 1941 the US Army Air Forces were formed under the command of General Henry "Hap" Arnold. General Carl Spaatz succeeded General Arnold as commander of the USAAF in 1946. He then became the first Chief of Staff of the newly formed United States Air Force in September, 1947. The first major role for the USAF was the Berlin Airlift. For 462 days from June 1948-September 1949, USAF and British RAF planes flew into western sectors of Berlin delivering humanitarian aid deep into Soviet controlled territory. Ultimately, 278,228 flights were made and 2,326,406 tons of food and supplies were delivered to Berlin.

Since World War II, the USAF has taken part in military actions throughout the world, including conflicts in Korea, Southeast Asia, Desert Storm, Kosovo, and the current Global war on Terrorism.

Today's Air Force, under command of the 19th Chief of Staff, General T. Michael Moseley, consists of 9 Major Commands and 700,000 active duty, guard and reserve personnel.

The mission of the USAF today is to "deliver sovereign options for the defense of the United States of America and its global interests — to fly and fight in Air, Space, and Cyberspace."

The United States Air Force is wholeheartedly committed to reflecting the diversity of our great nation. We actively encourage individuals from all cultural and ethnic backgrounds to learn about their Air Force and seek positions in the band program. For more information, contact Air Force Bands Division at (703) 696-9165 or www.af.mil/band/.
