THE TROUBLED ADOLESCENT

During the formative stage of a teenager's life change is rapid. This journey into adulthood, at best is stressful and confusing. It is not uncommon for a teenager to experiment with mood altering chemicals as a way to relieve the stress, be accepted by peers and to establish a false sense of identity. In many instances, the use of drugs and/or alcohol results in serious problems for the teenager and family which become too difficult to handle alone. Professional help is needed.

The New Beginnings Adolescent Program is designed to help the teenager and family experiencing problems resulting from chemical dependency.

New Beginnings recognizes chemical dependency as an illness. It is a disease which affects not only the teenager but the entire family. Supportive care is provided for both the patient and the family by offering a warm atmosphere which blends expert treatment and high professional standards with concern, trust and love. In this climate, the seed for a healthy recovery is nurtured. It is truly a "new beginning".

AN INDIVIDUALIZED PROGRAM

New Beginnings believes that each patient and family is unique and has special needs. Our treatment team provides a program specifically designed to meet those individual needs, as well as components which address all aspects of the illness. Utmost care is taken to provide treatment in a confidential and personal manner, protecting the rights of each patient and family.

The treatment components include:

- medical detoxification and evaluation period
- psychological assessment and evaluation
- individual and group therapy
- recreational therapy
- comprehensive family program
- academic program
- ongoing aftercare program for patients and family
