LODI ARTS COMMISSION
P.O.Box 871
Lodi, Ca 95241

Oct. 15, 1982

Lodi artists Margie Buck and Joel Nichols, with three drawings each, are the winners of the postcard contest sponsored by the Lodi Arts Commission.

Each of the entries, among 23 drawings submitted by a total of nine artists ranging in age from nine years old to adult, has earned a $25 award and will become the property of the City of Lodi. Winners were determined by LAC members in a secret ballot.

Buck and Nichols will be presented with their checks at the commencement of the Oct. 27 city council meeting. Other participants will receive certificates of appreciation, and their entries will be returned to them.

Subjects of the winning postcard designs include the Lodi arch, the new library building, Lodi Lake, a winter vineyard scene, an antique pump house, and a stylized design of grapes and leaves.

Once reduced and reproduced as postcards, these designs will be placed for sale at various retail outlets, and copies of the cards will be included among gifts to be presented by Mayor Fred Reid when he visits Lodi's sister city of Kofu, Japan, in the spring.

Also among the gifts will be two drawings submitted for the postcard contest by Kay Tamura of the city's engineering staff. The sketches---of the gateway to Kofu Park and the park's sign and monument---will be suitably framed for the occasion by the Lodi Arts Commission.

LAC vice-chairman Carol Marvel served as contest coordinator, assisted by Gay Stewart and Laura Wild.
